

Astrological Personality Analysis

A horoscope is a portrayal of the skies at the moment of birth. From the many hundred individual elements, the two dozen or so interpretive characteristics that are of critical importance to you are consulted.

In recent years, astrology has elicited a great deal of interest. As the world's oldest science, it has a tradition of 6,000 years behind it. Today, it is even knocking on the doors of universities, just as C.G. Jung predicted in the 1950s.

Anyone who seeks answers in the esoteric will find "primeval symbolism" here. Anyone who understands our times knows that man himself must do something to advance himself. This is the true calling of our times. The wise man has recognized that he himself is responsible for evolution. If you penetrate the very depths of your being with astrology, you will experience the joy of working effectively on your own evolution, and thus acting on your own.

The quality of the time of one's birth says something about the nature of the embodied soul. Marco, astrology is not a means for circumventing one's destiny; rather, it is intended to help in fulfilling one's destiny.

Goethe said this about astrology:

How the Sun stood, greeting the planets, on the day you were conferred upon the world, that is how you soon progress, on and on, according to the law under which you began. So you must be, you cannot escape yourself; even the sibyls and the prophets said so; and no time and no night divides a molded shape, which develops as you live.

How you should interpret your horoscope

Marco, many of us have contradictory personalities, a fact that a horoscope will of course reflect. Don't be surprised if parts of the interpretation of your
